the purpose of tradition is to secure existence, and to challenge tradition is to challenge security. but when tradition fails it must be changed.

what would it be like if tradition were challenged?

if the drab green walls . . .

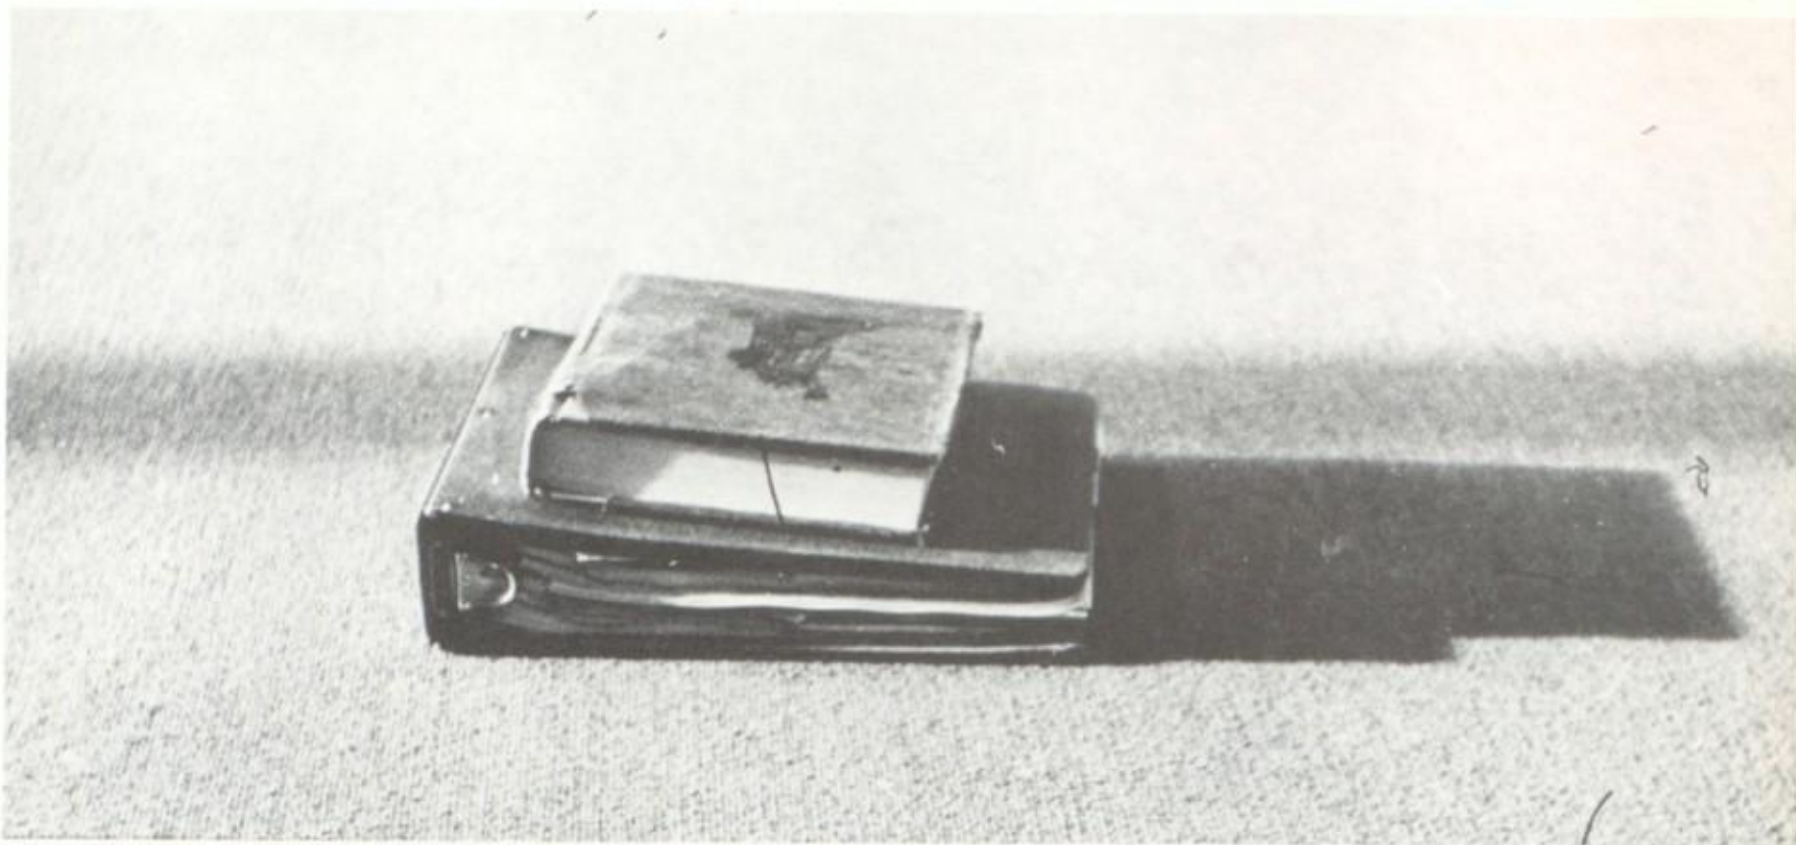

and confining clocks and schedules of the institutions gave way . . .

to an environment
where knowledge of self is as important as the preterit tense.

where learning becomes a means rather than an end, and love of learning is created not assumed to exist.

an environment where people can communicate honestly and give a damn every day.

where pressure for grades and acceptance in a good college cease to be our prime objectives.

an atmosphere where self expression and creativity are encouraged rather than stifled.

if in fact these changes do take place, perhaps through knowledge of self, man will eliminate his prejudices and his shortcomings,

and find the answers to war, poverty and bigotry which tradition has not.

to these ends we dedicate this book to don koehler, who has in his grasp the power to initiate these changes and put tradition in its place.

drugs — controversy

for most students the drug program meant $\frac{1}{2}$ days on fridays for 8 weeks. for some of the teachers it provided an excellent opportunity to set a hypocritical example in courtesy. but for most the program was a worthwhile experience. viewing films, listening to speakers, and talking to students hopefully promoted a better understanding of the drug situation in moorestown. the towns people also became involved in the program following the presentation by dr. victor gioscua (that's an understatement).

death of a salesman

this play should be remembered not for the production itself but for the performance the students put on. one could easily be reminded of the saturday kiddie matinees and the chaos that was produced.

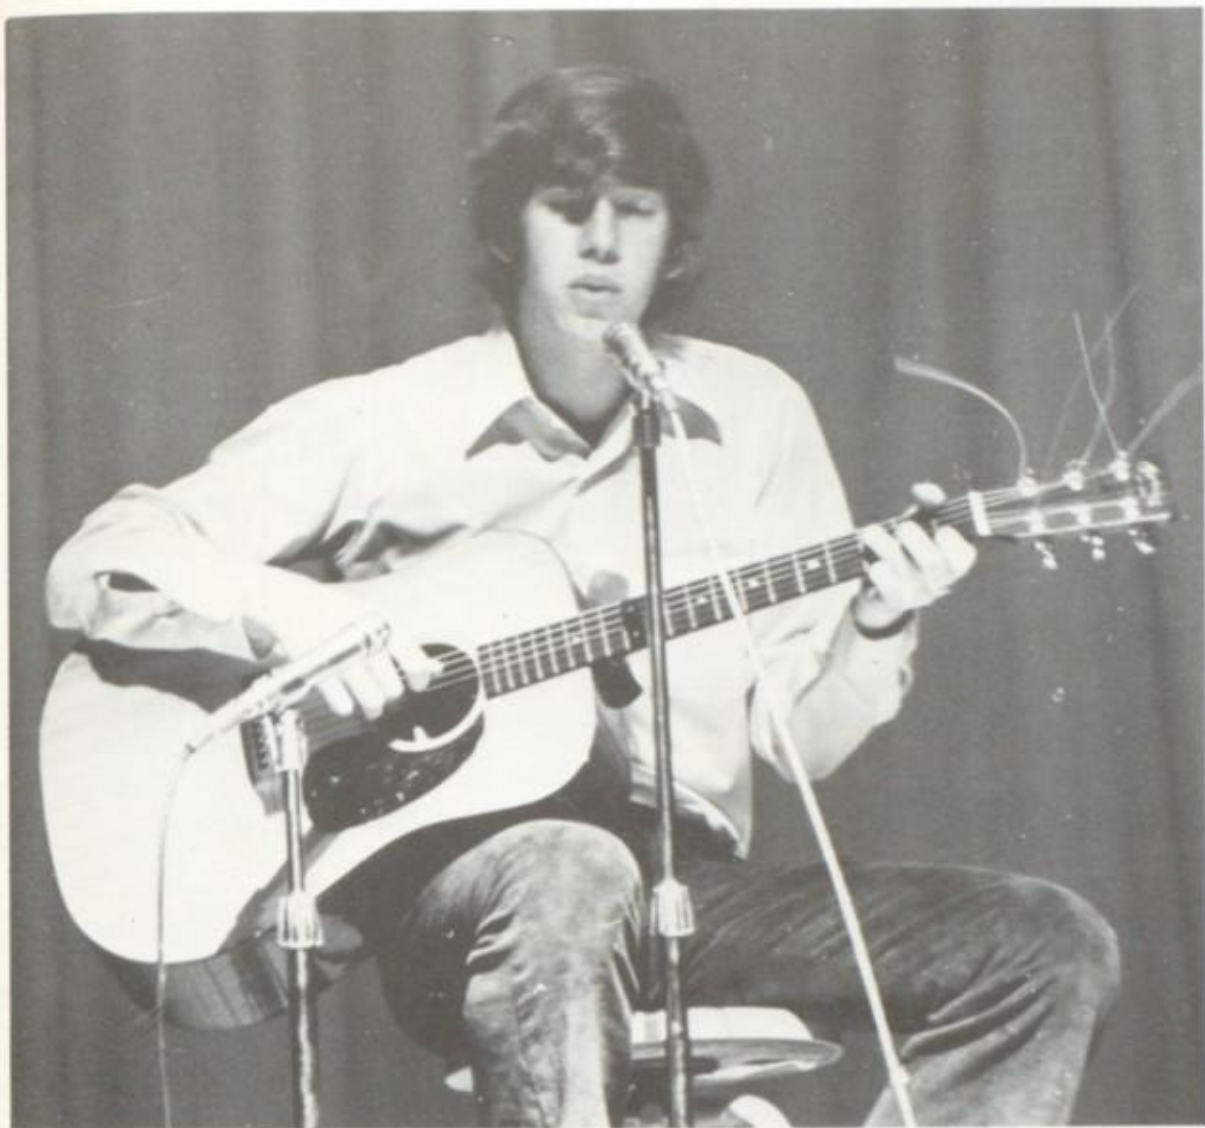

pygmalion

"two years of turmoil" sums the class of 71's theatrical experience. last year they "captured" a director six weeks before the play date, this year they lost two plays and two directors in two months. as time was running out quickly so were the hopes for the production until . . . mr. maddock emerged — savior of this "cursed" group. and what happened was called pygmalion.

talent show

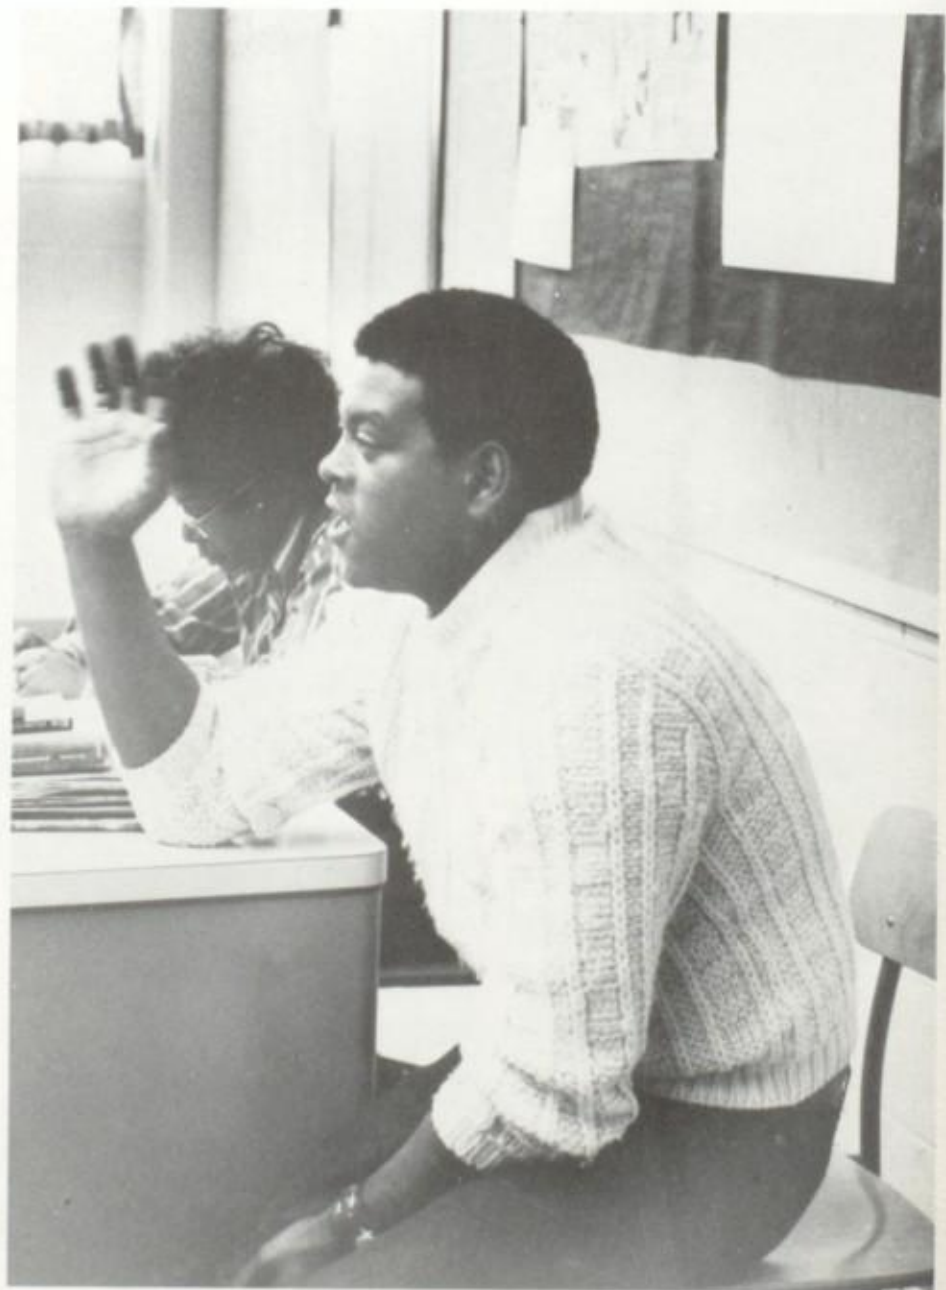

this year's talent show was like most other talent shows, it had singers, dancers, piano players, and impressionists, even a few moralists whom everyone understood and few enjoyed and a skit that few understood and everyone enjoyed.

herman weiss' young great society herman weiss, the leader of the "young great society," an outsider who ignited m.h.s. . . . the importance of this man and his speech might be summarized in not what he personally accomplished with "his people" but the impact his influence had on the students. a response! an incredible sight — an action prompted by the students . . . but the movement sadly diminished as the novelty disintegrated. now only a memorial remains — the "black bulletin board."

what is wrong with everybody is that they are trying to find out what is wrong.

be proud of what you are! don't try to be what you ain't.

we're all brothers and sisters so don't worry about whose stealing.

don't call me nigger! i'm not. don't call me colored! ignorant! don't touch my hair. i'm not green, pink, yellow . . . don't refer to me as you "people."

don't give me special privileges because i'm black. i don't need your sympathy.

putting it back together

we talk about coming together, but when do we start?

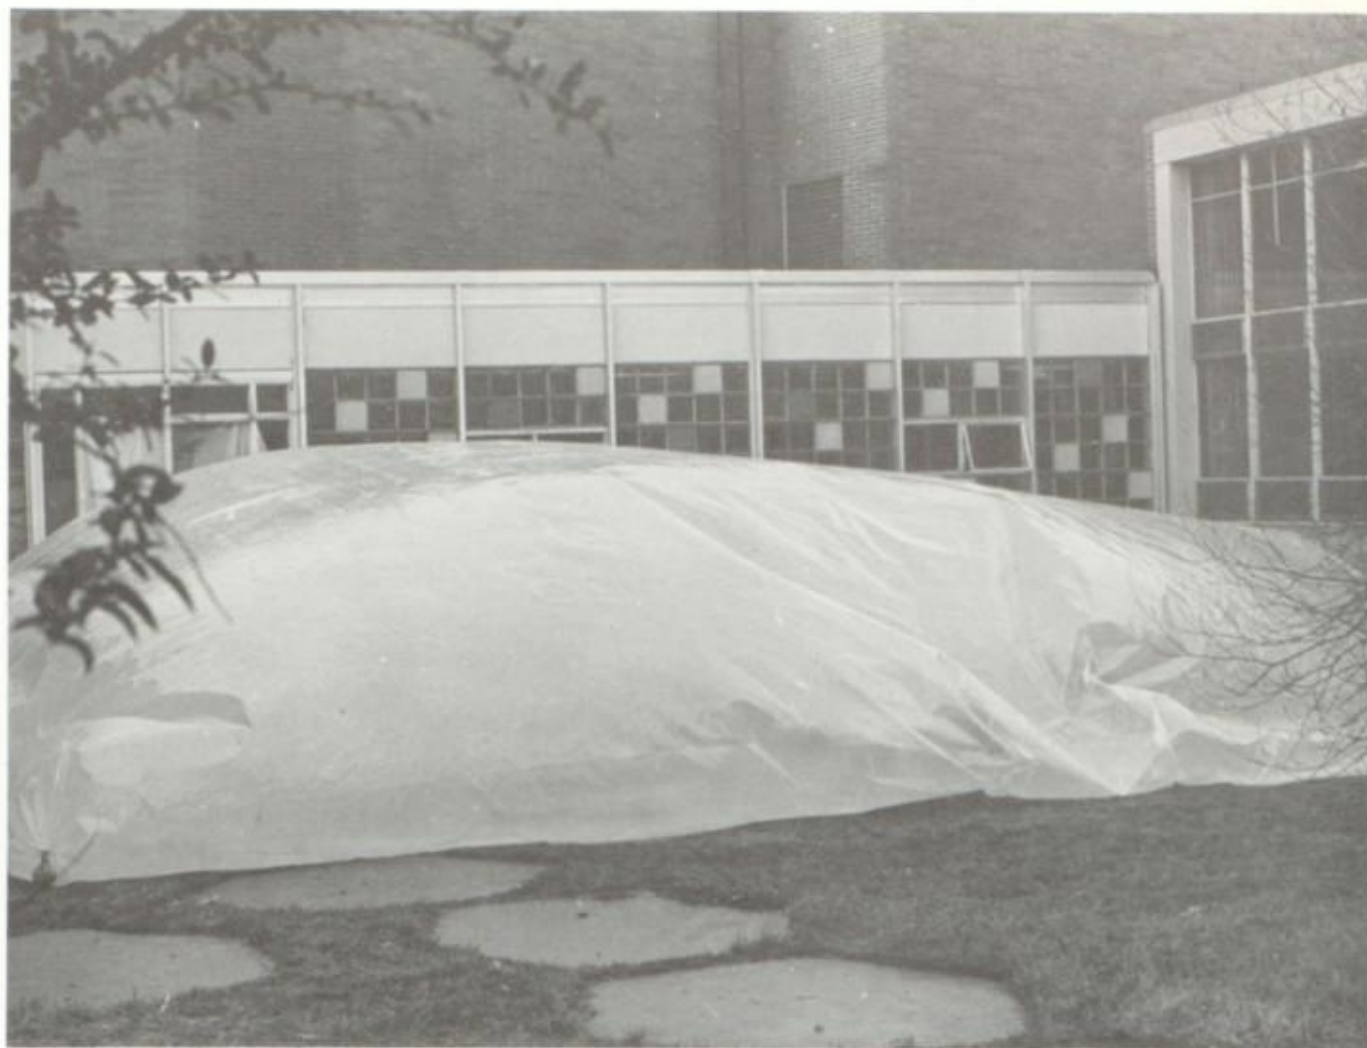

perhaps when all of our feelings on the subject are out and after we've established ourselves as a community of foolish people, then perhaps, without hint of cleverness or self righteousness we can talk not as brothers as much friends.

what about the indians?

don't feel so persecuted. it's individuals not races who hold you back, maybe yourself.

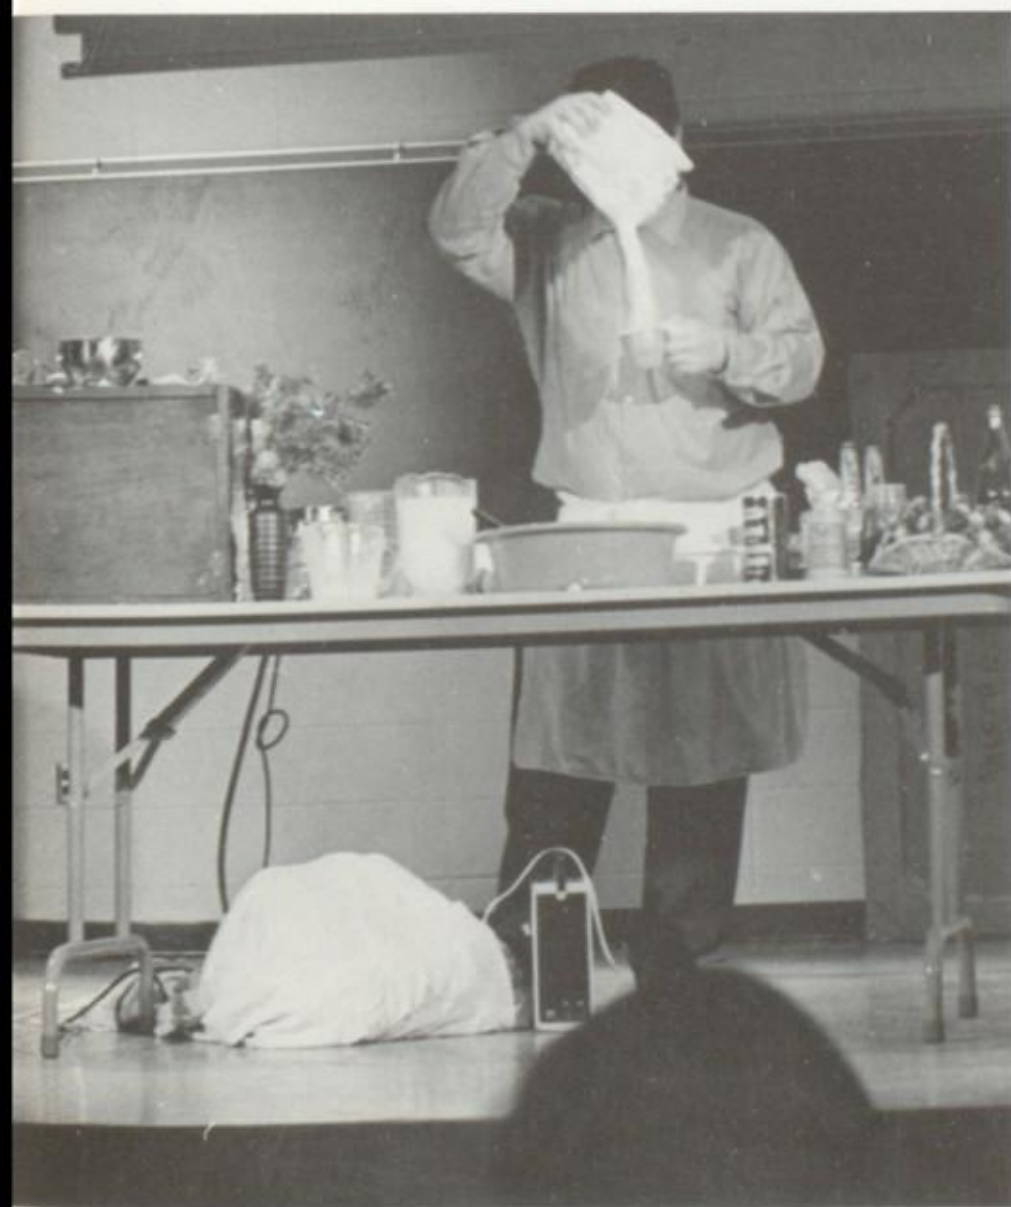

next time we have a war let the leaders fight it.

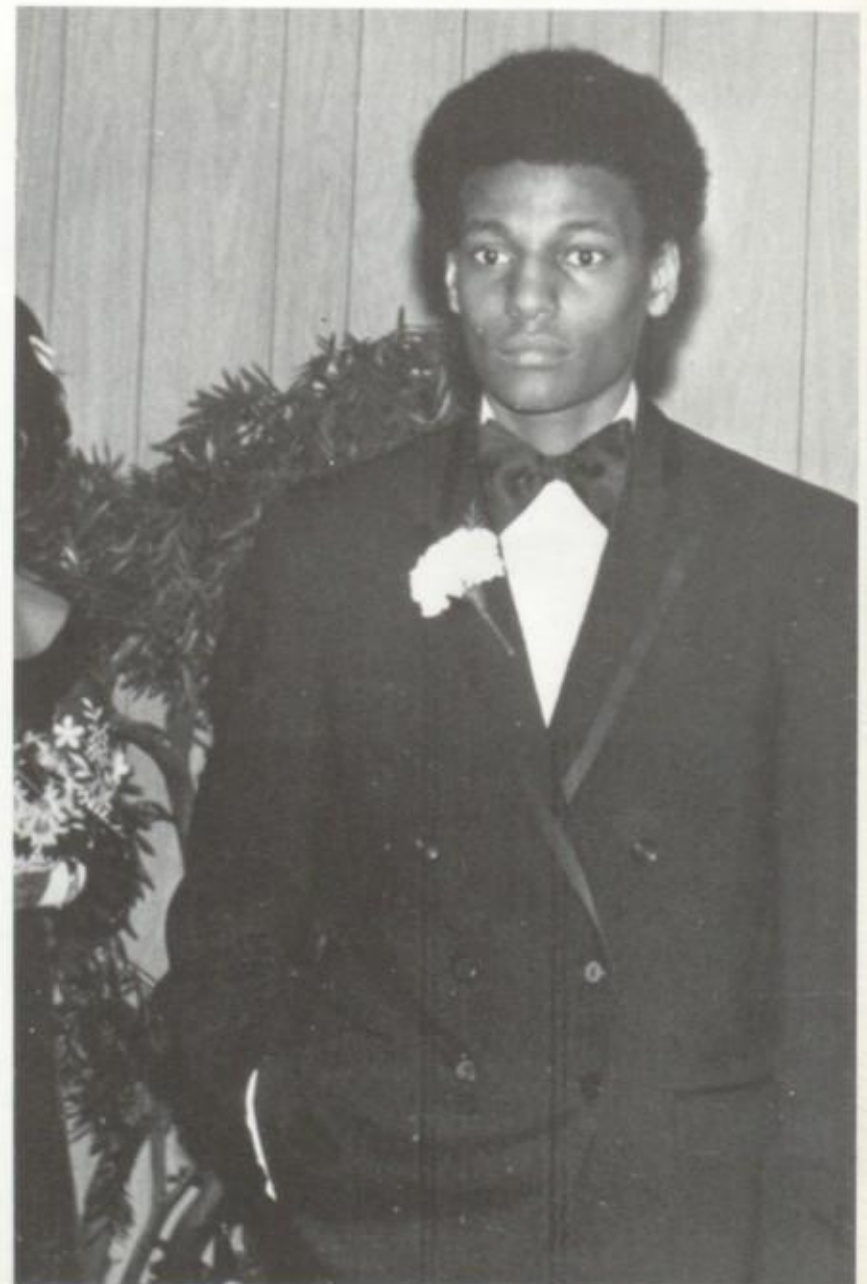

give a damn day

one tuesday devoted to bridge entirely the gap not between the two generations, but between the students. misunderstanding has become a way of life that even "give a damn" day could not alter. the line to the nurse's office on wednesday trailed down the hall. yes, all those students were ill on tuesday, victims of a serious epidemic — apathy.

prom '70

the american field service is one of the more subtle and non-violent peace promoting organizations. afs, instead of exchanging lies around a conference table, exchanges students from different countries. you could not mistake geert hamilton as our foreign exchange student this year for he truly was the "all-american dutch boy." hopefully this exchange has broadened our outlook towards countries other than the "good ole usa."

french club

this french lady was visiting new york see, and this taxi pulled up and the guy said "need a cab lady?" and she said "oui, oui," and he said "not in my cab you don't" and then he drove away.

german club

small and getting smaller . . . the club wishes to announce that its plans for world domination will have to wait another year.

latin club

the "dead language" club might be coined "pep club of m.h.s. for in their attempt to arouse and promote the "true roman spirit" in the student body they are the only organization to make the p.a. weekly. their chariots have raced from the homecoming, to the basketball courts, to the christmas parade (events even the students could not attend) so as they toast with their goblets of wine and throw their grapes far and high at the roman banquet, praise them with the gods . . . for they have not died.

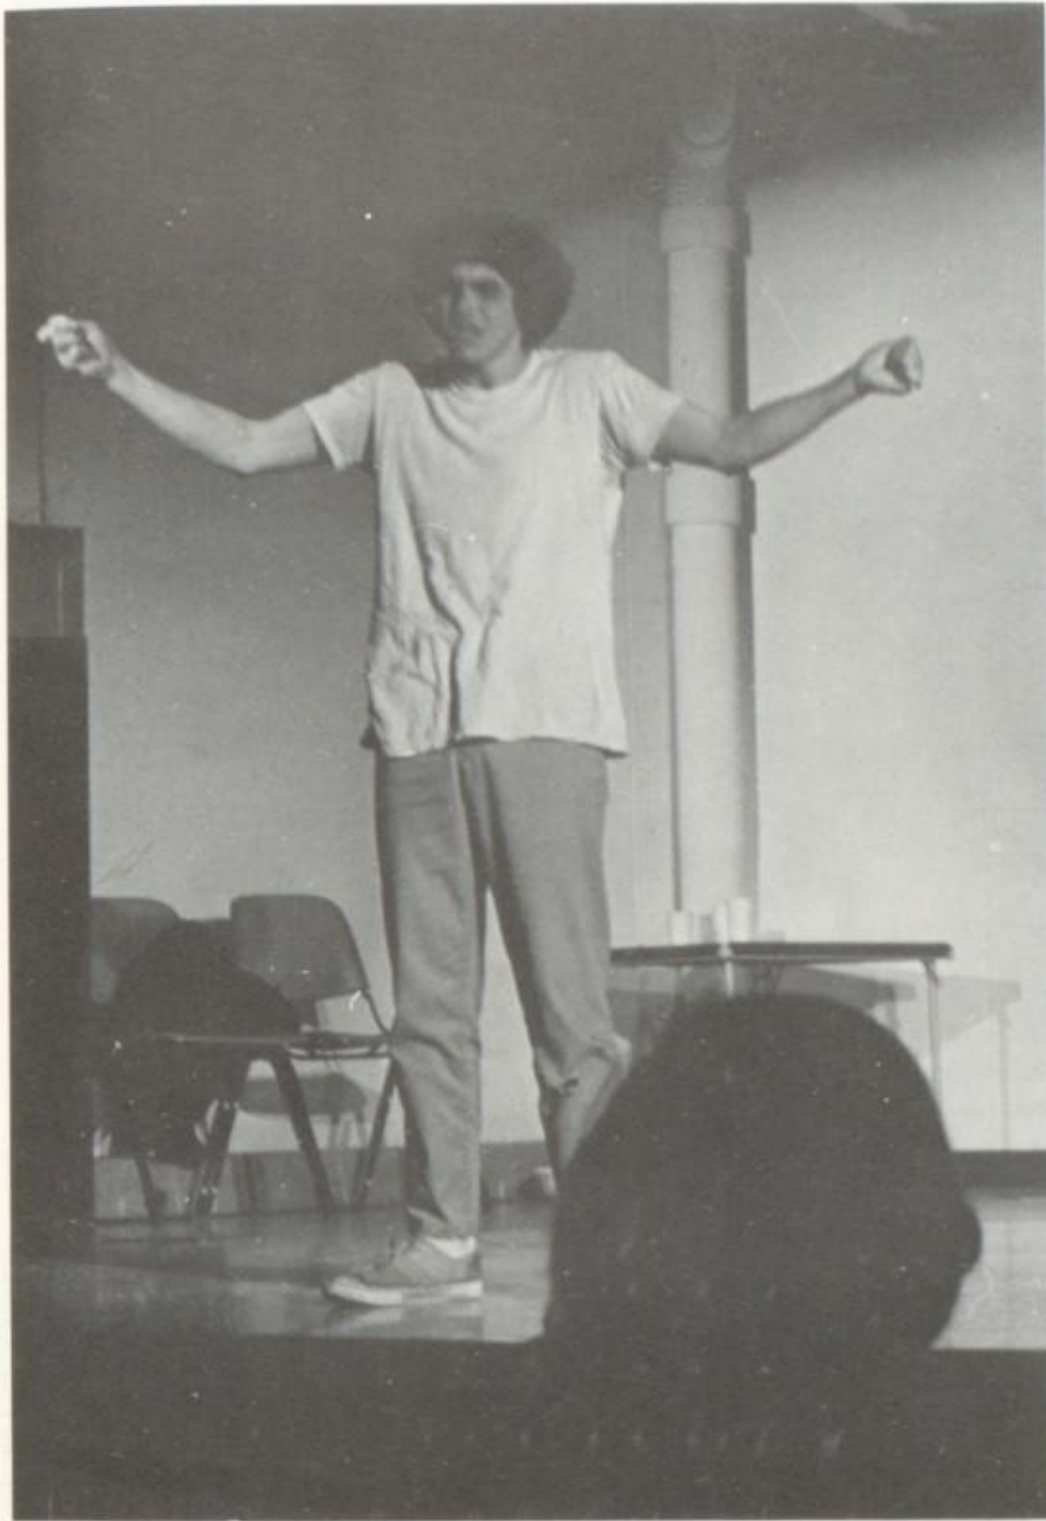

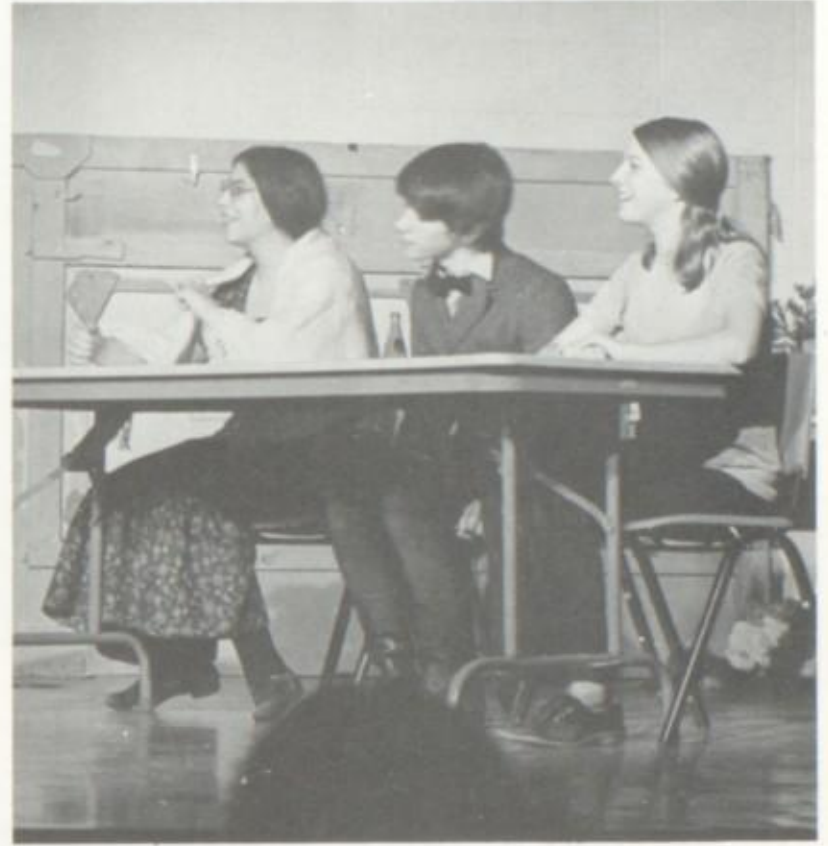

sectionals at convenient times . . . "ave maria, o canada" . . . we all get changed in the same room! . . . always in the paper, or off at a performance . . . bermuda, here we come . . . you really get to know the people in madrigals . . .

hymies

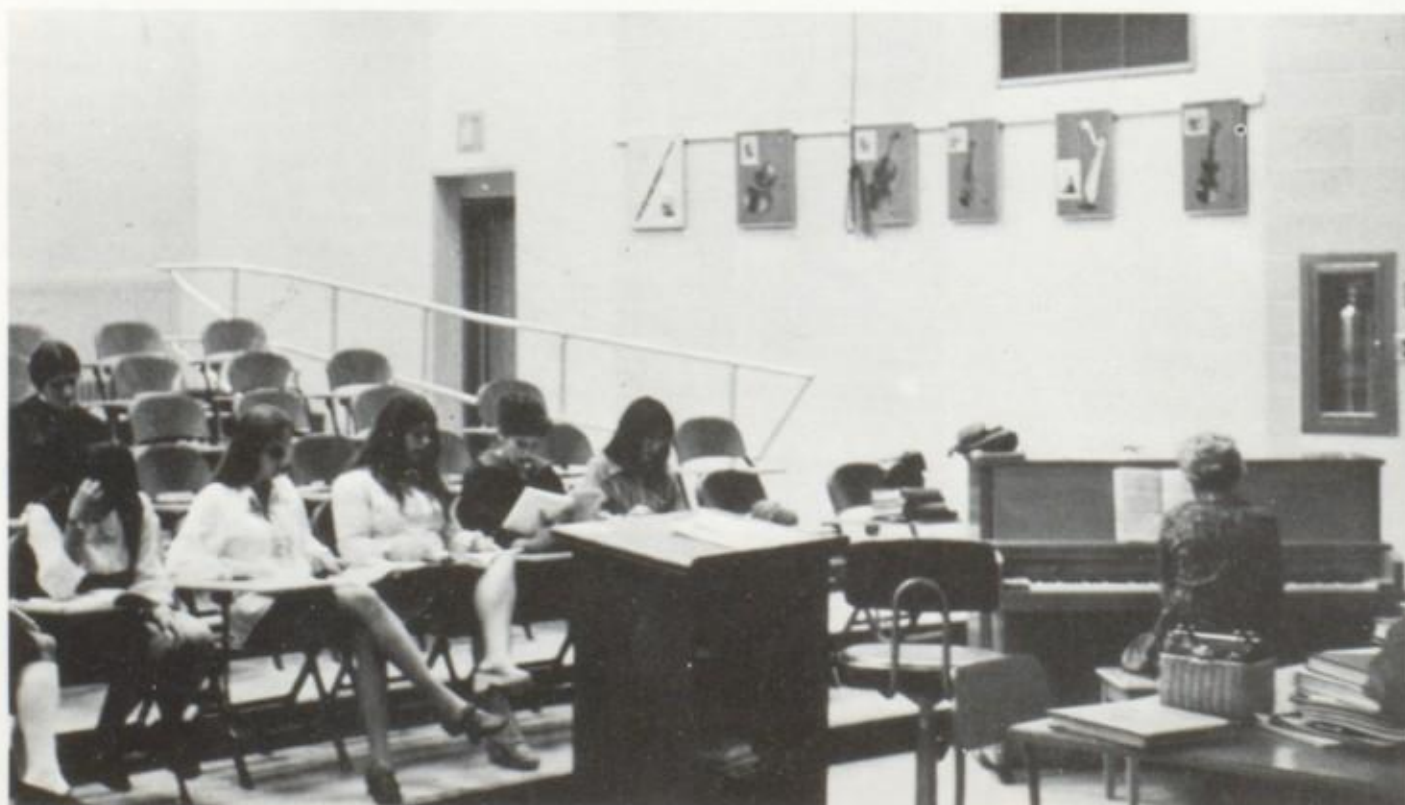

conceived and dedicated to the proposition that all christ symbols are created equal . . . this new, fresh, imaginative, and slightly neurotic group presented two performances of original work, improvised on friday nights, and on occasion, psyched each other and their audiences out.

choral groups

glee club trotted out the white gowns and candles for another hike down the aisle at christmas, while mixed chorus spent two 45-minute periods a week taking attendance. and the choir decided it was too late to do "the messiah" and presented "elijah" instead. they also traveled reluctantly to pitman high to spend a beautiful saturday indoors with an opera and a woodstock album.

orchestra

according to one member this was a good year, which says little. the orchestra did play some good music, and hopes to record an album of mhs's "greatest hits" someday.

behind the beaming smiles of the band members, often lurks a hidden resentment at being forced to play in 96 degree heat for the greater glory of the football team. this was rectified by a trip to new york to play in the st. patrick's day parade, where everyone froze.

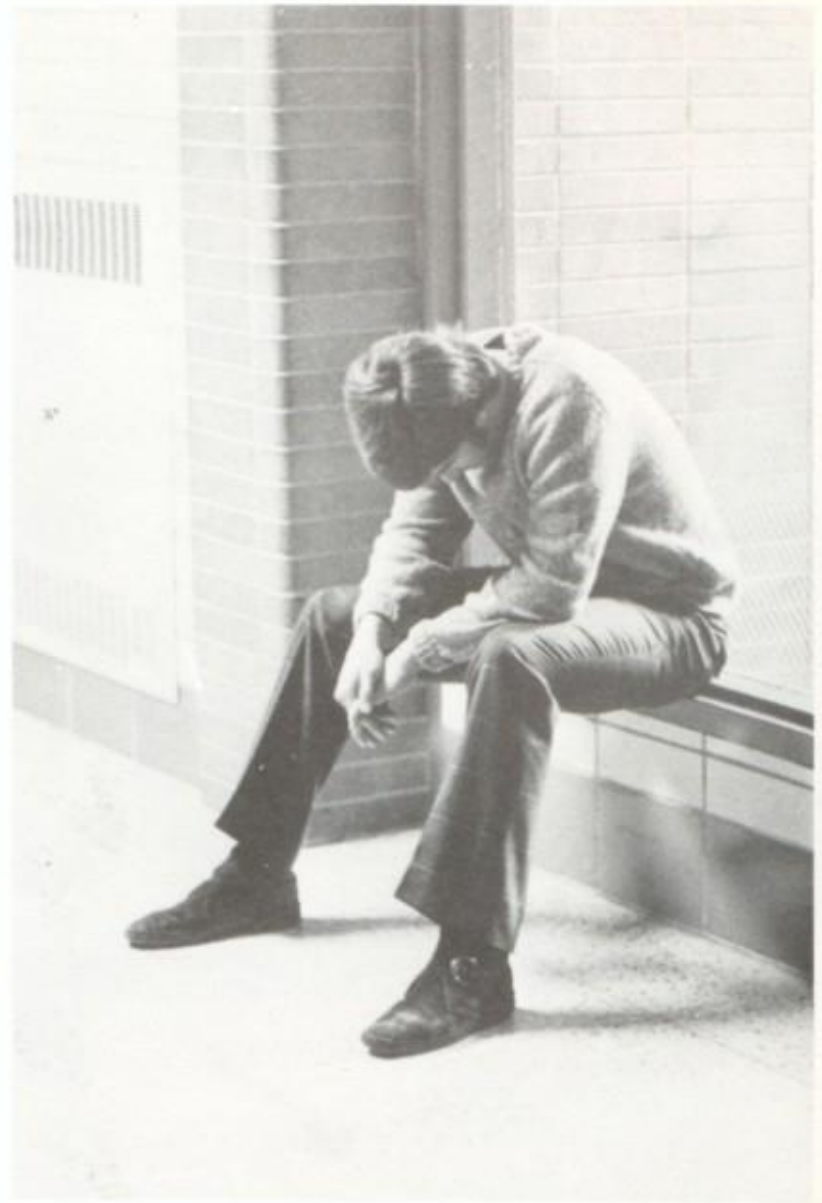

pep club

rah, rah, team!

monitors

it's nice to know that there are still some supporters of law and order in our school; this group of "mighty men" have the job of herding the cattle safely through the halls. they enjoy the privilege of leaving class early and arriving late. someday, they might help iron out the constipated intersections.

fire wardens

faster than the speed of light, able to slam windows with a single blast, more powerful than a locomotive. is it a bird, a plane? no, it's a fire warden. normally a mild mannered student but at the sound of the alarm they become super creatures, in their attempt to maintain order in the fire drills at m.h.s. . . .

assembly monitors assembly monitors did their mhs best to herd us in and herd us out of those assemblies. everybody cut anyway.

the operators and stage crew generally had a golly-gee-whiz good time, and chances are if you weren't one you never knew about the beer at play rehearsals, or anything else.

operators and stage crew

cafeteria workers

we owe a lot to these brave boys who made a valiant effort at keeping the cafeteria sanitary and our dishes safe from disease.

library assistants

living, breathing, walking, talking, card catalogs, whose purpose it is to protect the carrels, guard the "unroofed" conference rooms, and . . . rearrange your mess.

student secretaries

student secretaries typed up whatever needed typing up, they deserve our thanks. thanks.

f.b.i.a.

f.b.i.a. is a club for the business orientated, non-college bound students. as eighty percent of mhs students manage to butt their way into one college or another, they are just a small group, but one which hopes to make it big in the business world.

it may come as a surprise to most people that we are foster parents — "our children" live in korea and colombia. since the homerooms have become notoriously cheap, supporting the girls on 40¢ a month has become a real test in budgeting. the representatives stubbornly persist in begging at least once a month but their efforts hardly match the contributions.

isn't that some sort of record brand?" the time has come to disclose the true identity of the group that sponsors the deca cake sales. the members of the distributive education clubs of america composed of the future leaders for the marketing and distributing field (a formal term for business). there are even opportunities for leadership in chapter, state, and national d.e.c.a. offices! evidently these people are already accustomed to the business world; their meetings are held at the hawaiian cottage!

are you tired? run down? apathetic to the classroom situation? well, do your part for america. fta wants you!

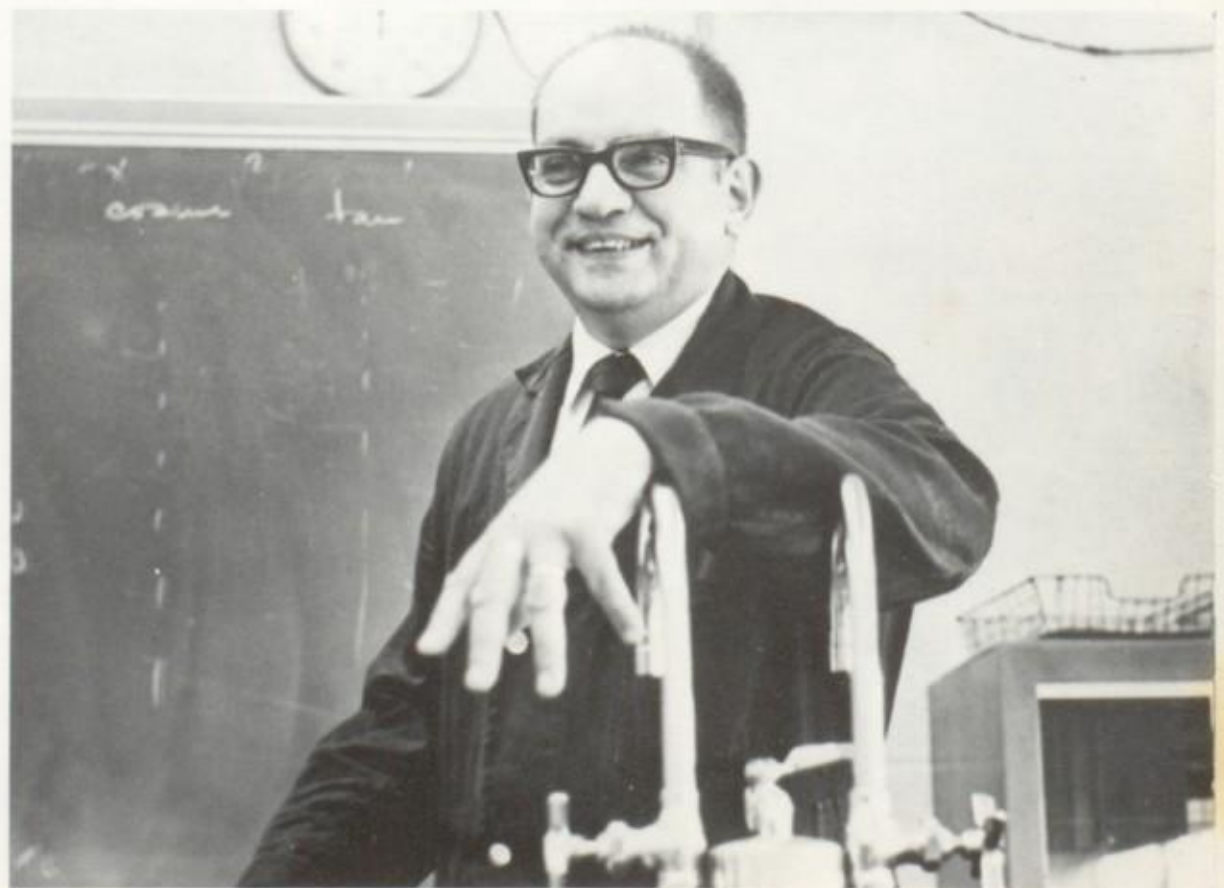

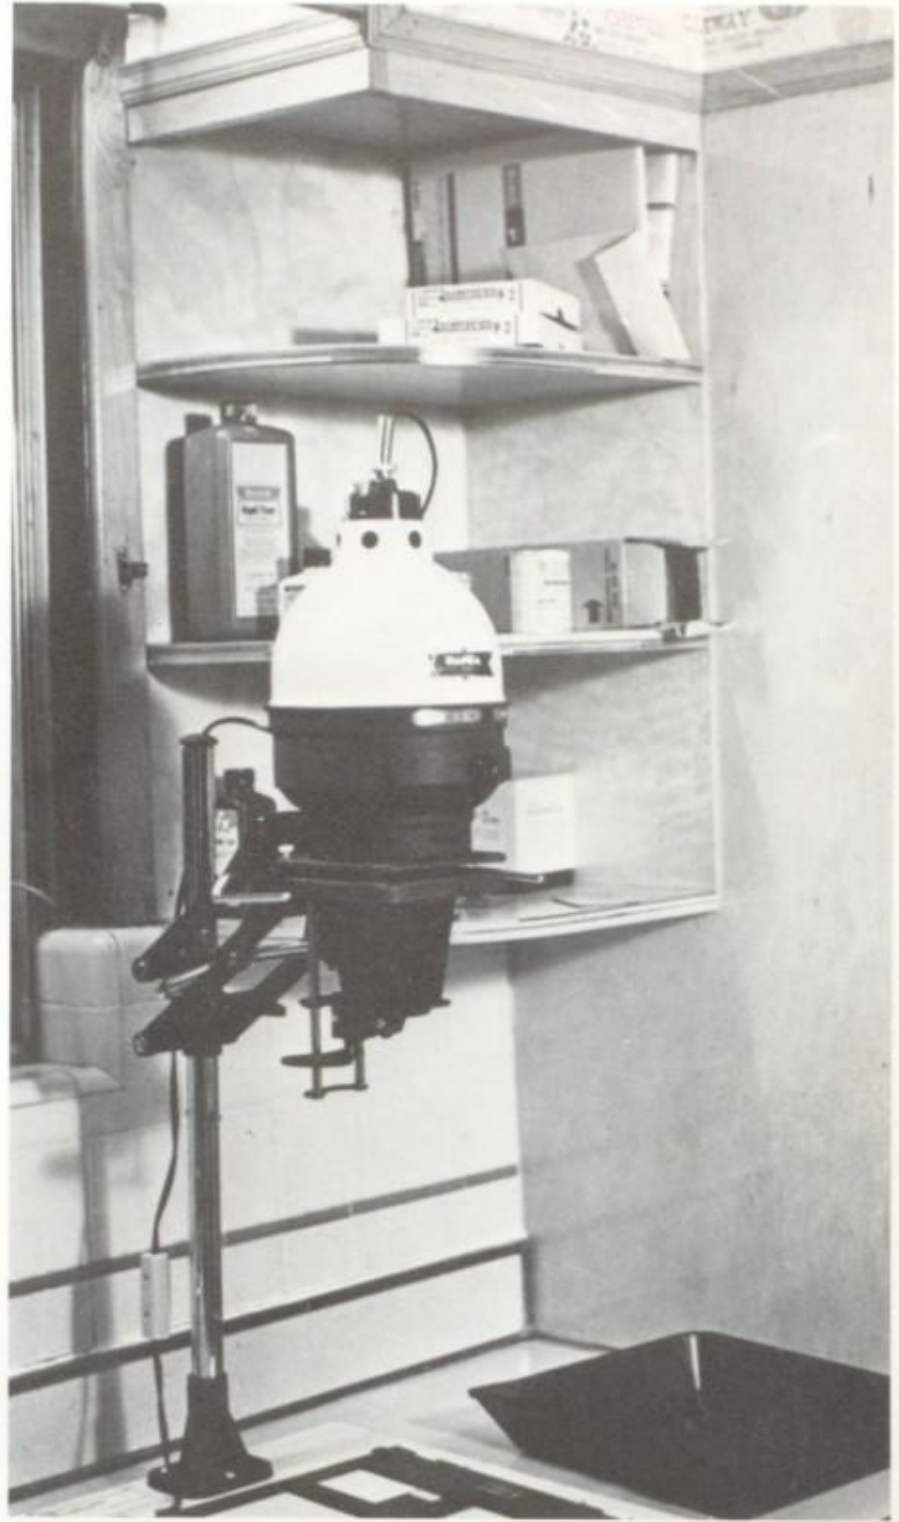

f.h.a.

there still exists one group in m.h.s. which has not been swayed by women's lib — fha. these homemakers-in-training each year sponsor the male cooking contest, the vietnam bake-in, and the spring fashion show. traditionally this group has been comprised of a small bevy of "feminist supporters," (something we'd like to see changed). hopefully next year "the opposite sex" will be represented in both the club and at the convention.

camera club

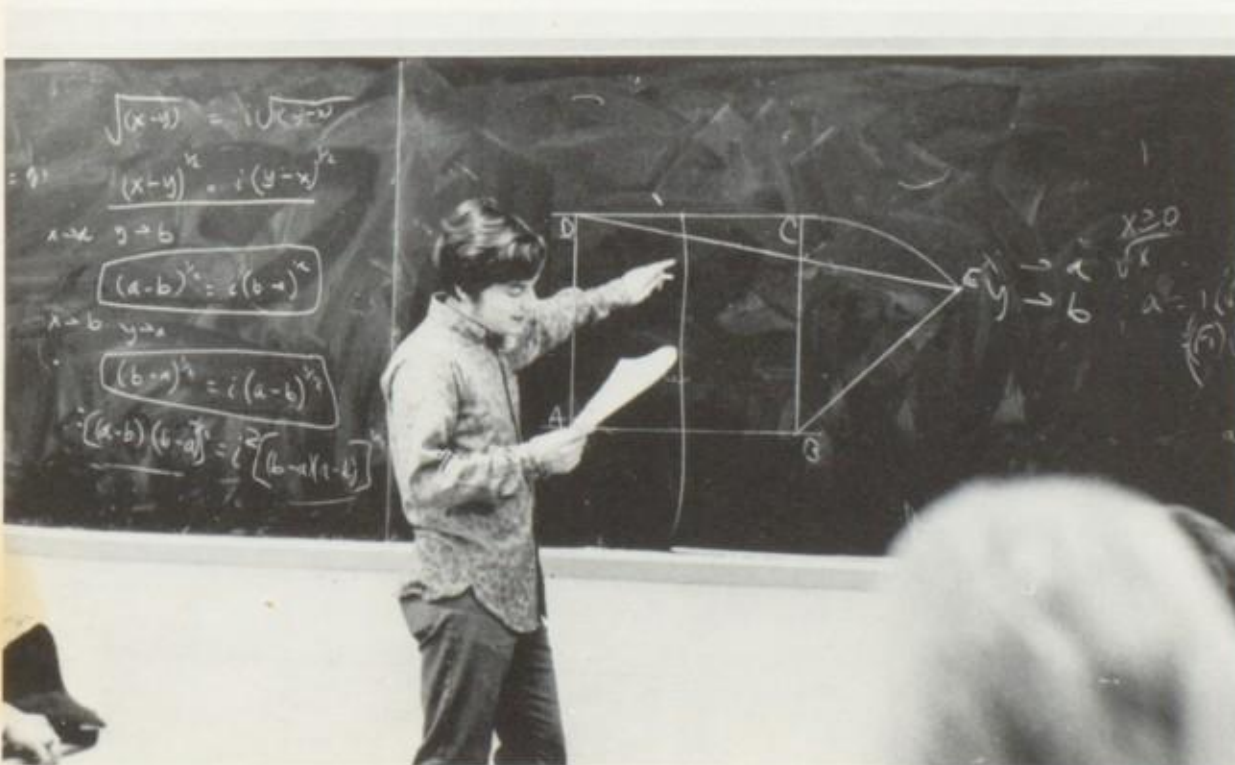

the camera club was underdeveloped this year.

chess club

that invigorating exercise for those who prefer the battle of kings to that of athletes. lots of people are under the impression that chess is just a sophisticated checker game, but members will tell you it's a game requiring much devotion and practice, almost like mental football.

math club

$$\sqrt{\frac{x - 4x + 3x^3}{9.72}} = x^2 + \frac{-7}{x} + \sqrt{2196.7}$$ an opportunity to learn the new developments in the mathematical field! plus a chance to spend hours contemplating potential solutions to the unsolvable.

student council

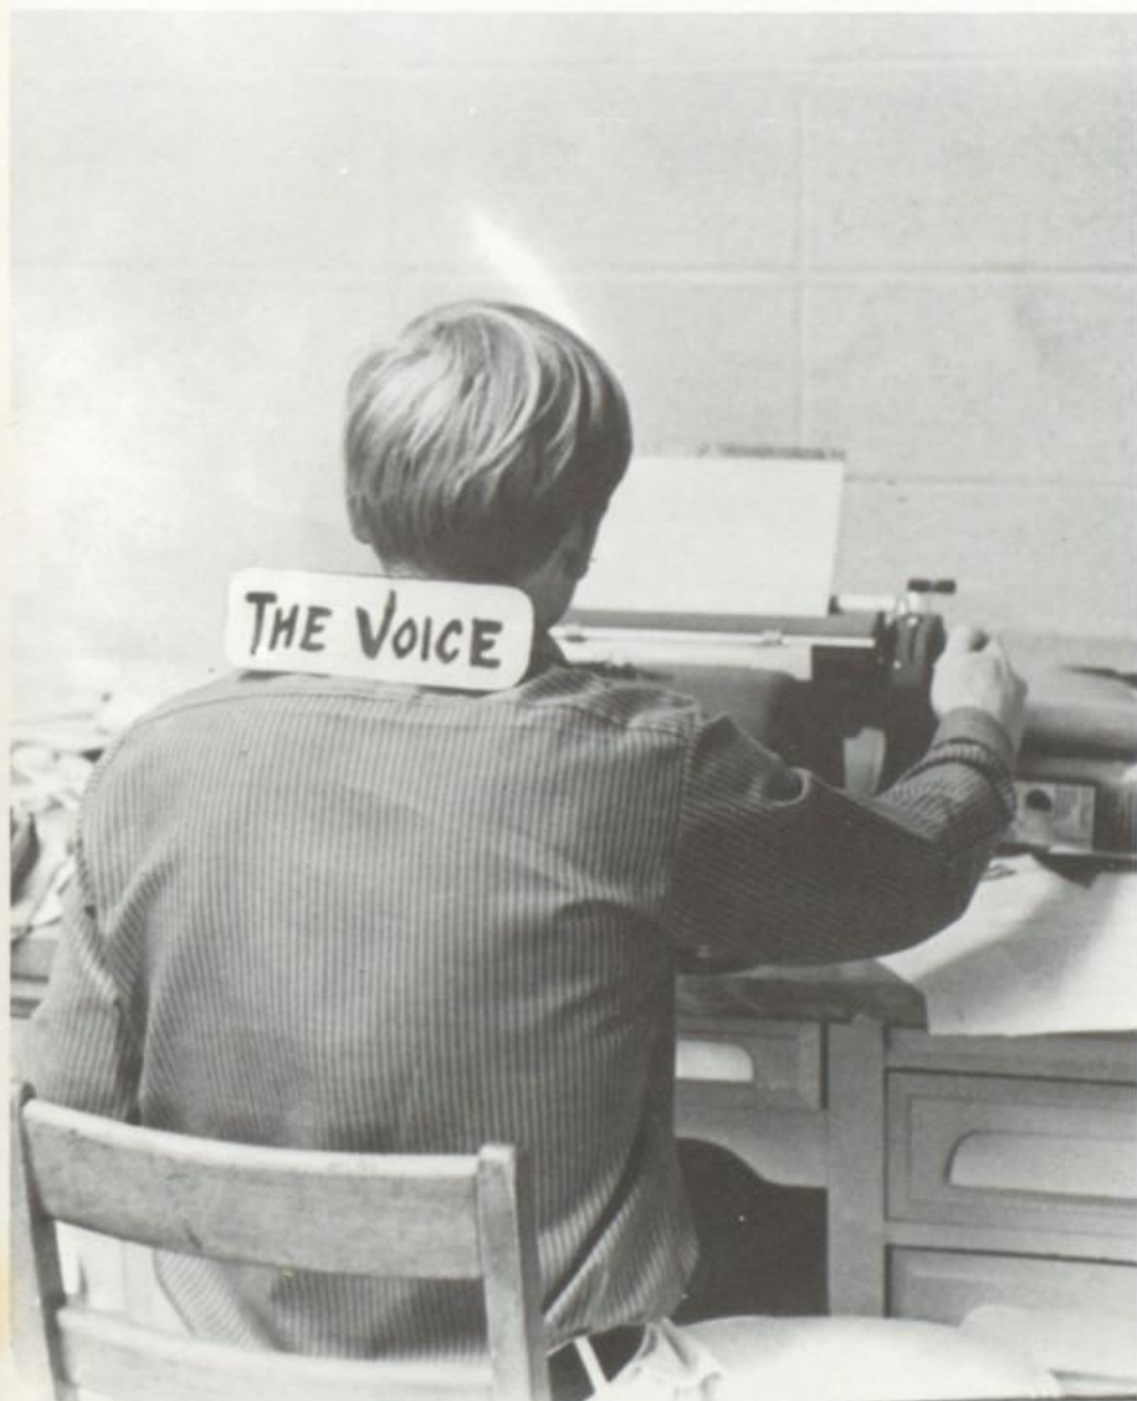

what is student council? harvey hess? an apathetic society? an attempt to reform the school? a social club? many have probed the problem and there is but one conclusion, something is lacking . . . student support.

the 64,000 dollar question is — just whose voice is this? the usual issues of cafeteria food, disgusting bathrooms, and picking up the litter make their monthly appearances. occasionally, a stab is made at humor (that's you gaffer), and noticing national issues. the big news comes when the yearbook office steals the voice's typewriter. tempo may be dead, but its style lives on.

nutshell

are the literary geniuses of m.h.s. anti-religious, anti-all that is establishment? people seem to exaggerate an opinion into a plot and then . . . many newspaper editorials screaming of the exploitation of their beliefs. these people do not seem to realize that they are defeating their own purpose, for they are fulfilling the writer's dream — a response.

people create a yearbook, not merely the "midnight oil burner's" and their staff but the people — you. the 250 students who escape from class to be snapped in a pep club picture are no more you than a grinning homeroom portrait. you are the atmosphere, the theme which radiates throughout the school. our job was to "book it" so that you might see yourself as you were in the year 1971.

What for? Sweat for the common good
And be dragged on down?
That's not my way and you go yours.
Hey, Mac, got a word?
Thanks for the tip but I've never engaged
In that type of activity.
Too damn messy.
Why can't you tell what you're trying to say?
Don't blame me when the Church is at fault.
After all
Where else could you have picked up
Those devilishly disarming personality traits?
. . . and acting credits too. Hmmm.
But don't think about it.
What a mess logical thought makes of illogical life.

Billy Bo Striver, aged and unwrinkled, Blew his brains out with his father's.
 So keen was he that he mastered the art of speaking what he didn't mean not to say and couldn't what he would.
 Sister Sally Lou, not to be confused, cried.
 Cried oh! Bo! How!??
 Then she followed his lead but couldn't quite.
 Valiant? No, insane. Doctor's orders.
 So they put bars in her eyes and netted her hair.
 Tragedy strikes a failing small town
 In a failing rich country.

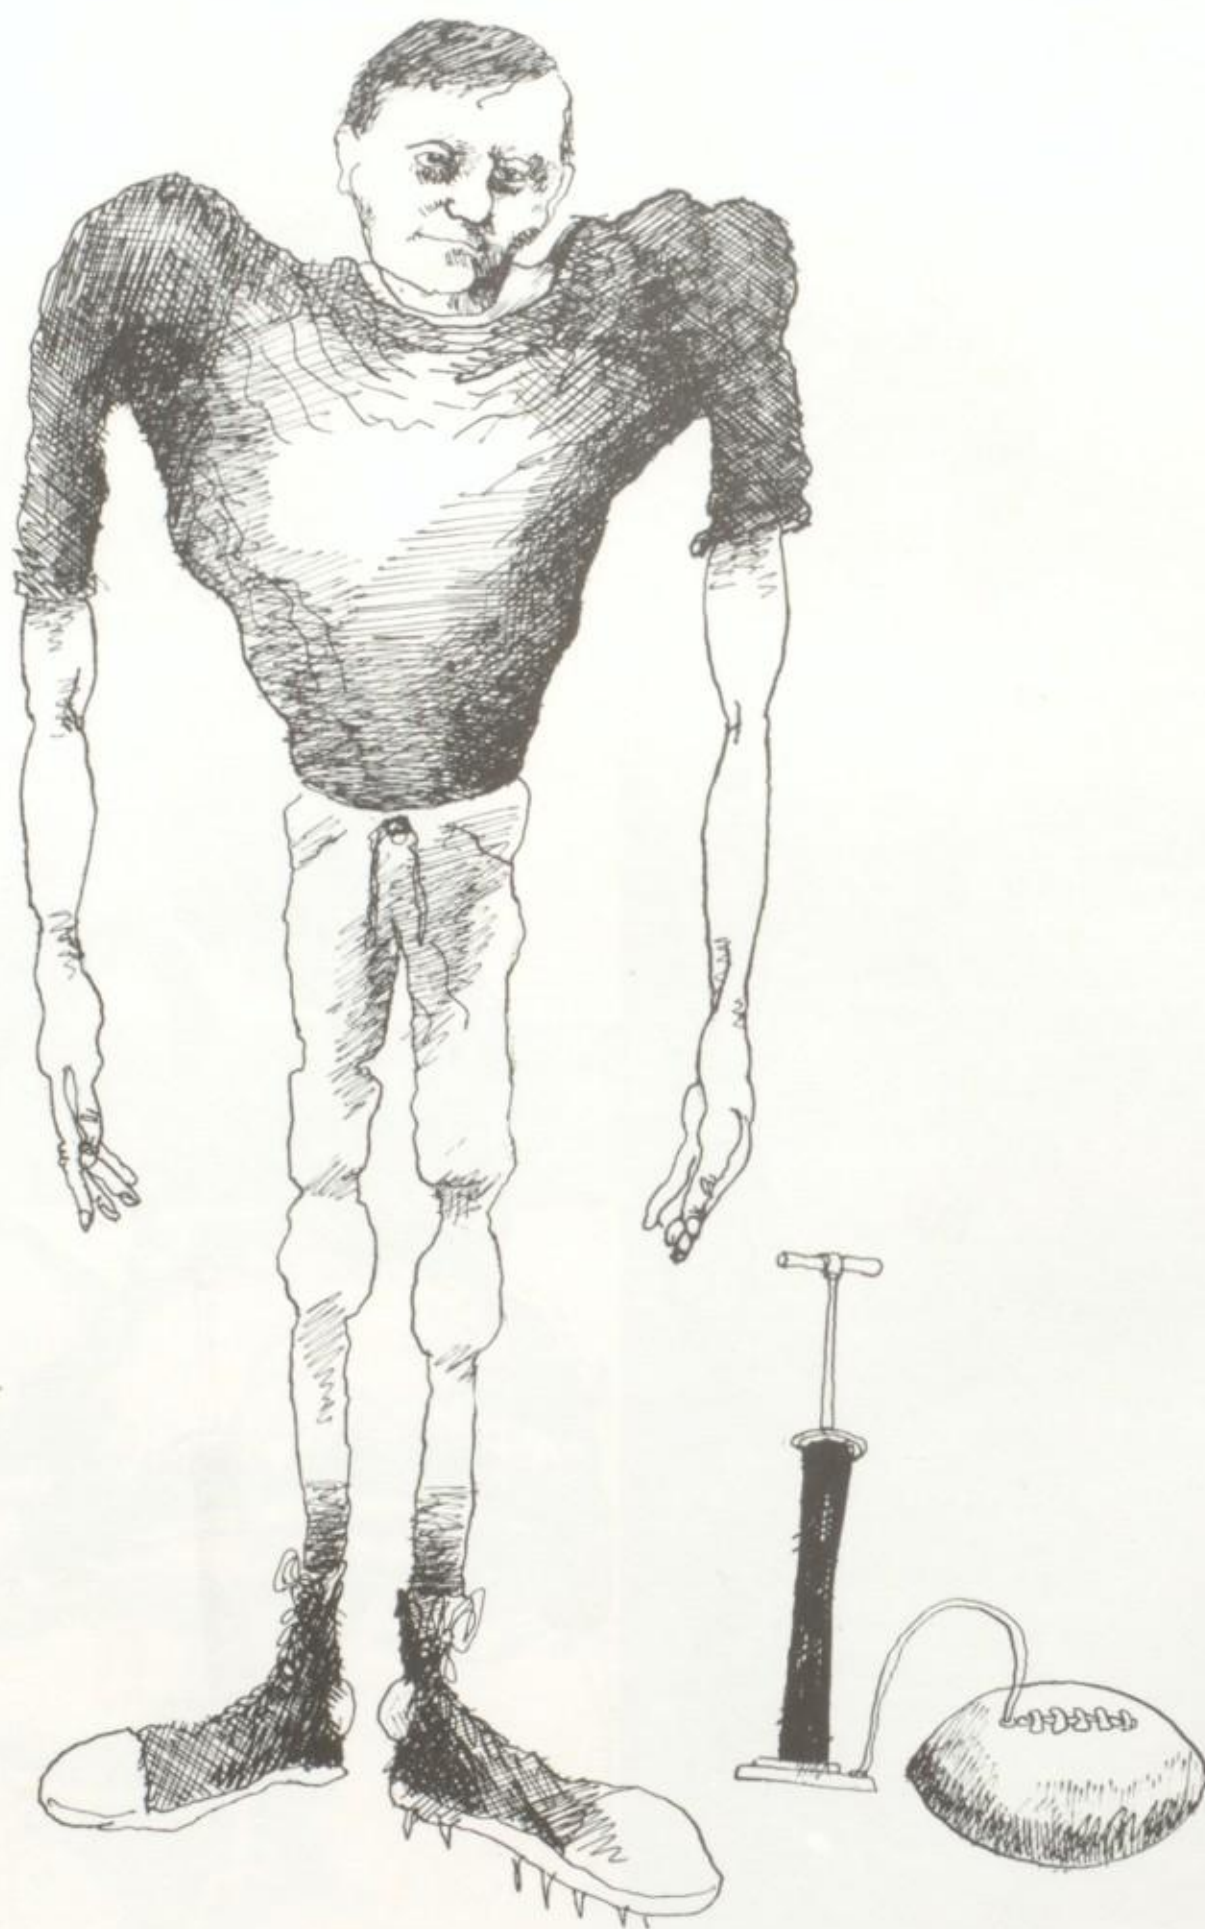

Jack, the often-hero, is slandered.
 Tex is dumped and buried.
 Victor is squashed and humiliated.
 But don't despair.
 Out of the breeze from the great north country he comes, tall and lean and straight for the saddle.

Frances "Frankie" King, nondescript, ate herself.
 Scarred beyond all recognition, last seen grinding
 The only things left: her teeth and 14 solid gold fillings.

the kennedy game was perhaps the high point of the season. playing in the second of a run of forty days of rain, often with the current against them, soaked with waves raised by a 37 mph wind, and slowed by the ungainly scuba flippers, the moorestown soccer squad heroically lost by a score of 2-1. the game was watched by a large crowd of the student body and four frogs getting into the spirit of hibernation with about 75 choruses of "fire and rain." even though the game was lost, team spirit wasn't, as the happy busload swam home to sober up.

a vision of grace
ah yes, a lovely flower blooming midcourt
 spinning lightly
pass the golden orb (soft rubber on waxed wood tarnish) across to streaming teammate a motion forward and then a passing pass so passively powerful it robs the weak of breath and yet
apollo's own dawn hath seen no greater glory.

and then she moves

her arms like velvet spin up the orb through the net oh! glorious moment of ecstasy oh! two point score.

winter track

winter track is not as big as football at mhs, there isn't really so much emphasis. it takes a special type of person to enjoy running in sub-freezing heat, and chipping away at their running shoes with ice picks.

almost everyone who comes out for the sport survives until the spring thaw. some will come out again, not for glory or ribbons, but for their own personal enjoyment.

you have to respect mr. welch, you may not agree with him all of the time, but you have to respect him. he's that kind of man. you can respect him for his intelligence, he hasn't always been involved in physical education, he is, and has been, an accredited english teacher. he is a man with a philosophy, a philosophy that he not only expounds, but lives.

this philosophy comes out in many ways, but most of all in the cold winter days when he becomes the father to thirty men starving to make weight, caring about nothing but moves and countermoves, about pinning the opponent. he can be found at the arena on wednesdays and saturdays at a time when most men are eating meatloaf with their families. his children respect him, they respect him for his eighteen inch neck and twenty-eight inch waist, for his skill and ability, for being the best wrestling coach in new jersey. and out of that respect is born a devotion. they work for that look in his eyes when they successfully take off the head of an opponent in a half-nelson, or squeezing a death hold a little tighter. that look of pride, that look of accomplishment.

g-e-r-t-i-e g-o-o-s-e! yeaah moorestown, or "yes, latvina, there really is a girls' swimming team," and that cheer is how we start each meet.

we didn't have a bad season this year: 9 and 2 overall, 8 and 1 in our league. our new spirit innovation this year was the smile button (no more war toys). it gave the team something to work for. rewarded for bettering her time, each girl treasured it as a measure of accomplishment (ha ha?).

practicing in the luxurious community house pool (it is more luxurious than the camden y's. at least there isn't any algae on the bottom.) we diligently strived to better our bodies. well, we tried hard.

we did have two league champions, captain dale kennedy, and next year's captain, leslie taylor.

editor's note

it is another april day and once again the students are restless. like caged animals they pace the hallways. class cuts, school cuts, absenteeism, and detention attendance are up. spring clearly illustrates the student image of school as a prison, or in actuality what a prison apathy has made of this school.

the yearbook in past years has been a tradition bound ego trip, which like the school is permeated with apathy. this year's book hopefully is different, not only in content and style but in purpose. the theme section has a theme! in sports, underclassmen, and activities the old "line em up mug shots" were eliminated, as repeatedly requested by the students over past years.

in activities instead of a group photo of 50 people, most of whom have never attended a meeting, we attempted to take candid photos of the clubs in action; unfortunately, some of the clubs in mhs are not in action, so it was rather difficult to portray the achievements they did not achieve.

in sports again we tried to replace the mug shots and mediocre write-ups with candid photos that would capture the essence of the sports, and write-ups that everyone would read, not just the team members. because there are no team pictures, a list of varsity members has been printed along with the write-up, and seniors playing a sport or in an activity have been listed in the directory.

homeroom pictures were replaced with group shots of underclassmen in their lunch periods. if you managed to evade the p.a. announcements, bulletins and posters, or were too lazy to go, your face is probably not in the yearbook and perhaps deservedly so. otherwise everyone should have his picture in the book at least once.

in addition to these changes we added a creativity section, to which the response, like most things, was negligible, senior blurbs written by friends (a touchy subject where we stayed within the status quo), a more representative senior eccentrics section, small student ads in the business section, 16 more pages, and a different approach to the dividers.

the general student does not realize the work that has gone into this book. it's been very difficult to have any kind of continuity throughout the sections with the deadlines set the way they are, (nov., dec., feb., and april). while most of you were just beginning to get back to the school thing, we already had a deadline to meet nov. 1st on subject material that was supposed to reflect the whole year!

granted this book has many faults, but in its unrefined form we hope that it represents a new format in more advanced book content for the moorestown yearbook, hopefully a book with meaning, rather than a superfluous, bound mirror.

hopefully the 1971 moorestown is one which you will be able to read over and over and "get more out of it" every time. there's a lot in it if you look. if nothing else we hope we have done enough to raise the average student out of his grave of apathy long enough to take a rational look at himself and his school. we think you'll either love this book, or hate it; but in any case we've succeeded if we get a response out of you.
